

Baiting Hollow Farm Vineyard Invites Long Islanders to “In Their Eyes”

A Special Gallery Reception Featuring the Photographs of Renowned Artist Stephen Lang

Baiting Hollow, LI, New York (September 8, 2009) -- On Saturday, October 3rd and Sunday, October 4th, marking the Second Anniversary of Their Horse Rescue Program, Baiting Hollow Farm Vineyard (BHFV) is honored to host this special event. Mr. Lang’s works have sold internationally and have appeared in the Smithsonian’s National Museum of the American Indian, locally in LI Pulse Magazine and in The New York Times.

“The visions are mine, but the emotion is yours,” says Lang about the images he creates. Framed photographs of the rescued horses that take refuge at BHFV will be unveiled at 3PM on Saturday, October 3rd. The reception is until 7 PM that evening and the photographs will be on display and available for purchase at the gallery in the tasting house throughout the fall. There is no fee for attending the showing.

Since 2007, BHFV has saved a growing number of horses from slaughter, and while the vineyard provides some grazing, the cost of care and feed for the animals is dramatic. In order to help them continue with and expand their North Fork horse haven, the artist is generously offering a portion of the sales of these photos to help BHFV’s horse rescue efforts. Feel free to introduce yourself; he will be at the vineyard Saturday and Sunday from 3-7 pm.

“The photographs exquisitely capture the dynamic and soulful beauty of our horses,” says Sharon Rubin Levine, who spearheads the horse rescue program. “And now that there’s a cool autumn snap in the air, it’s a great time for Long Islanders to enjoy some quality time out east. We just hope they’ll make sure to visit with us for Saturday’s gallery exhibit and the celebration of our second anniversary of our first horse rescues. We’re here all weekend, so come and enjoy live music from 2 – 6 pm, family fun, face painting, pony rides and a special horse training demonstration featuring some of our rescues...see how far they've come."

BHFV is, in fact, the first vineyard drivers arrive at along Sound Avenue. To reach the vineyard, take the LIE to exit 71, then turn left to head north on Edwards Avenue, drive 3.8 miles to Sound Avenue and turn right. Baiting Hollow Farm Vineyard is located immediately on the left.

In its short history as a vineyard, BHFV has produced a dozen varietals, including a Gold Medal Riesling, and award winning Cabernet Franc, Chardonnay and Cabernet Sauvignon. This year, they proudly introduced three new releases. Their top of the line Red Velvet is a seductively smooth wine blended from Estate Merlot and Cabernet Franc grapes and aged for 20 months in French oak barrels. White Satin is a new premium combination of BHFV's finest white wines with hints of peach and jasmine and a clean, crisp, dry finish. Its third release, Cheval Bleu (blue horse) is a delightfully rich, sweet wine that can be served with fruit or cheese or as a dessert wine.
